The new crossings of the Saar were made in the face of heavy fire from a front of two and one half miles between Merzig and Saarlautern by infantry men in assault boats.

South of Saarbrücken, which was reported aflame from American artillery bombardment, the Yanks cut spearheads fighting into the outskirts of Sarreguemines.

Only light opposition was encountered by the Americans as they

BRITISH FAN OUT AGAINST DISORGANIZED NAZIS

Rome.—The victorious British Eighth Army fanned westward from the captured Italian metropolis of Ravenna against apparently disorganized Nazi defenses and seized the three key towns of Godo, San Michele and Piangipane, Mediterranean Headquarters announced today.

Inside Ravenna itself Italian patriots enthusiastically joined forces with the British to mop up isolated pockets of Nazi resistance.

Other British columns along with Polish forces, smashed their way across the Lamone River in strength southwest of Faenza while Indian troops fighting on the right flank of the U. S. Fifth Army smashed forward in a two-mile advance and captured Mount Penzola.

DISORDERS IN ATHENS AT NEW PITCH

Athens.—Fighting and disorders in the strike-crippled city of Athens reached a new pitch of intensity today when British paratroopers broke into Communist headquarters in the center of the capital after blowing down the doors with grenades and seized about 10 prisoners.

The situation meanwhile also was reported deteriorating at Salonika and the general strike spread to the port of Patras.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM EATS TURKEY

Charles I. Bowen Plays Host To 50 Guests At His Restaurant

A PLEASING AFFAIR

"Charlie" Bowen carried the ball for the community last night when he made a successful pass of 50 piping-hot turkey dinners, with all of the trimmings to members of the Bristol high school football team, school directors, those outstanding in athletic activities here and some of the members of the high school faculty.

It was "Charlie's" night, and the well-known restaurateur played host in a most genial manner. He lives on Garfield street, directly across the street from the high school field, and he said last night:

"I have sat on my front porch for seven years and never paid an admission to see a game, so I thought that it was near time that I paid up." Judging from the response on the part of the guests, they considered that "Charlie" had fulfilled his obligation in a most generous manner.

The invitation read: "A victory banquet in honor of Coach Stackhouse and his victorious squad." It was this group which was especially honored at the affair.

To the People of this Community

Stars and Stripes is an Army newspaper which gives our men on the battlefronts the news and features of the day. One of its editors under took to "josh" a contributor who wrote in to say that the average GI overseas wanted to go home as quickly as possible. The response was immediate and terrific. Countless GIs deluged Stars and Stripes with letters, so many in fact that there was space in this great army newspaper to carry only a few. The editors wrote this caption over these letters: "Sure, We Wanna Go Home!"

Every American fighting man wants to get back to his friends, family and friends but he also wants to finish the job. You know him better than anyone else. He is your relative or close friend. How soon and how safely he gets home depends on you. The more effective support, the more weapons, the more blood plasma, the more war bond buying, the more everything will determine the length of time before GI Joe really comes marching home. The Sixth War Loan gives you the chance to let the world know you are in the fight to the finish. too. Get an extra $100 War Bond today.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

A Young Man's Choice

Washington, Dec. 5. MR. Edward B. Stettinius, Jr., our new Secretary of State, has a fair chance of becoming the most over-advised official of this or any other Administration. Already he is being drenched with advice. It pours upon him from all directions, in and out of the department, from a wide assortment of persons.

ONE reason is because Mr. Stettinius is astonishingly young for his high post; a second is because he is relatively inexperienced, and the third is because he takes kindly to advice; does not resent being advised; seems, in fact, to be grateful to his advisers. Perhaps this is a good thing, and certainly he is getting an extremely large dose at the moment. But it has its disadvantages, too. For one, it is impossible to assimilate all the advice Mr. Stettinius is getting now. Much of it is contradictory, and too much docility toward his advisers is sure to lead to confusion.

EDITORS, radio commentators, columnists, diplomats, professional liberals and the practical politicians are all trying to tell Mr. Stettinius what he ought to do and how to do it. The friends of Mr. Sumner Welles insist that he listen to that not-altogether admirable gentleman. Others point out that there could be no surer way of alienating the support of those who respect and like Mr. Hull. He regarded Mr. Welles as thoroughly disloyal to him and forced his retirement as under secretary. Following the shifts, changes and new appointments announced on Monday (which obviously were not entirely determined by Mr. Stettinius), still further reorganization is being pressed upon him.

Tax Law Changes Are Discussed Before Club

ANDALUSIA, Dec. 6.—Bensalem Rotary Club last evening welcomed a new member, Russell Struble, Cornwells Heights, a member of the faculty of Bensalem Township public schools. Clifford F. Melvin, Philadelphia, was also a guest of the club.

Russell Rorer, who is employed by the Department of Internal Revenue, was a guest speaker. He told the club members of some experience he has had in the department, and of the many changes which have taken place in the tax law since he has been with the department. Mr. Rorer mentioned in passing a few of the main changes in the new tax law.

Contrary to most impression, he said, instances of where individuals try to cheat the government are rare. "There are more instances where the government has to refund money," the manner in which check-ups are made on suspicious reports proved quite interesting.

The guest also told of some of his experiences on gunning trips in Pike County, also of some of his fishing trips.

BRISTOL MAN TOLD BY COURT TO PAY WIFE $25 WEEKLY

John Paone is Directed By Judge Boyer to Support Wife and Children

TESTIMONY IS HEARD

Wife Alleges That Her Husband "Punched Her In The Face"

On one occasion, she told the court, her husband broke one of her fingers during an argument, and on another occasion, stayed out all night.

The wife also testified that her husband accused her of going out with other men, and that she could

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

WITH A 12TH AAF B-26 MARAUDER BOMBER GROUP, Dec. 6—Sgt. Louis C. Surrick, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Surrick, of Maynes Lane, Croydon, Pa., is entitled to wear the Distinguished Unit Badge, mark of the highest citation that is awarded units of the American Armed Forces.

His AAF B-26 Marauder group in the Mediterranean theater has been cited by the War Department for outstanding performance of duty in armed conflict with the enemy. During aerial operations which preceded and supported the Allied breakthrough at Cassino, Marauders displayed extraordinary accuracy bombing numerous targets.

On May 12th, in direct support of the Fifth Army drive towards Rome, the group achieved spectacular results in an aerial attack on heavily defended enemy troop concentrations, including the famed 15th Panzer Grenadier Division. Despite numerous planes damaged and crew members wounded, the unescorted Marauders released almost 4,000 fragmentation bombs on the target. Irreparable casualties and destruction were piled on the already hard-pressed enemy, smashing key reserves and aiding the Allied drive northwards.

The group was cited for "results which set it above and apart from other units, typical of the continuously superior precision bombing made possible through unstinted effort and superlative performance of duty by every member of the organization. Through their unsurpassed courage, skill in combat and steadfast devotion to duty the personnel of the group have reflected great credit upon themselves and the Military Service of the United States."

Marauders from the group have flown more than 350 missions during the African, Sicilian, Italian and France campaigns. The group has also received the Croix de Guerre from General DeGaulle and the provisional French government.

Sergeant Surrick is an administrative clerk with his Marauder squadron and has been overseas 14 months.

Britain's Policy Toward Italy Unchanged

WATCH THEIR SMOKE

A modern Red Riding Hood carrying a basket of goodies to her grandmother — probably in her forties, according to many current instances — might not come up to the latter's great expectations. "What — no cigarettes?" her grandmother would say, poking ruthlessly through the contents of the basket. Then she might leave the basket over onto a sofa and start filling a pipe. Anyhow, Red Riding Hood's grandmother did have a pipe, the unconvincing story about her being eaten up by the wolf, notwithstanding.

In any case, many a real-life grandmother and many a mother and daughter nowadays are going for pipes in a big way, according to reports from the tobacco trade. Importers and manufacturers say that, with cigarettes almost nonexistent, the demand for pipes has become enormous and that women are now in the pipe market for just about anything they can lay hands on, aside from the dainty type hitherto stocked for the fanciful exhibitionist. A survey of Chicago cigar stores has disclosed that women are making inroads on the available supply of bulk tobacco, purchasing thousands of pipes for their own use. Evidently the feminine use of pipes has passed far beyond the trick or gesture stage.

This development seems less likely to cause popular concern — even in what's left of a man's world — than does the shortage of cigarettes. In fact, the world was more a-dither about feminine uprooting of custom when women started smoking cigarettes, and that seems ages ago.

For the man who is destined to be hard hit in his tobacco pouch, there may be compensation in reflecting that as women take to smoking pipes, they also will learn something about cleaning them and perhaps show increasing tolerance of man's smoking habits. It is woman's inalienable right to do as she pleases. A man may as well accept the situation and watch her smoke.

FLIGHT EXPANSION

Aviation is spreading so sensationally in all its fields of activity that it is difficult to keep abreast of its achievements. It is generally known that the number of planes at the front engaged in direct combat is enormous. But when figures are given to the public of the number of planes utilized in forwarding supplies, mail and personnel to the battle lines, they challenge credulity.

Crossings of the Atlantic now exceed 2,200 a month — an average of one plane every twenty minutes. Monthly flights in the Pacific area now total 900. The Air Transport Command and the Naval Air Transport Service have 2,900 planes in service, carrying in an average month 80,000,000 pounds of cargo and mail and 145,000 passengers. They fly 34,000,000 miles a month on routes totalling 240,000 miles.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

he is certain to make a lot of personal enemies, which will be a new experience for him. It is the cost of his sudden eminence, the price a man has to pay for power and importance. While Mr. Stettinius' individual advisers are quite numerous, and there are many small feudists among them, in the main they can be divided into two classes.

FIRST, there is the class which thinks Mr. Stettinius should recognize that he has become Secretary of State, just as he became under secretary, not because of his own ability or charm, but because Mr. Harry Hopkins, presidential adviser and friend, preferred him over other aspirants. He should recognize that Mr. Roosevelt, as has been often said, intends to be his own Secretary of State, that Mr. Hopkins, as Mr. Roosevelt's most devoted friend, speaks for the President; that what Mr. Stettinius is expected to do is what Mr. Hopkins or the President himself tells him to do; that he will get along fine if he does just that and avoids the notion that it is his prerogative to make foreign policy or State Department selections. These are distinctly White House prerogatives and will be exercised more freely and fully with him as Secretary of State than they were with Mr. Hull. The recent changes seem proof of that.

THERE is a feeling that Mr. Stettinius will be in full accord with this view; that he will look upon Mr. Hopkins as his guide and take his orders from the White House. On the other hand, there is a second class of advisers who urge that Mr. Stettinius play a very different role. Indeed, these include those upon whom the great cause of world peace weighs heavily, who talk and write always in global terms.

THESE declare that an opportunity such as few men have now lies before Mr. Stettinius. If he fully grasps this opportunity, he may immortalize his name in history. Upon him largely rests the duty of seeing that this country does not throw away the fruits of victory. He is urged not to sink into the role of Wilson's Secretary of State.

Mr. Lansing, but himself to exercise leadership in forcing full American participation in a collective-security organization that will insure permanent peace. This, they assert, is what Mr. Hull wanted to do and would have done. Mr. Stettinius has solemnly pledged himself to carry on Mr. Hull's work and carry out Mr. Hull's policies.

WITHOUT, of course, antagonizing the President, he is now pleaded with not to lower the dignity of the great office he holds by becoming a mere White House rubber stamp. He will, it is said, be in a far stronger position and be a far happier man if he does not do this than if he permits Mr. Hopkins to map his course too completely. It is quite a choice for a young man to make. The natural disposition, of course, is to compromise, but that might turn out the worst way of any.

Today's Quiet Moment

By Rev. Howard L. Zupp Winder Village

God of our fathers, keep us repeating our creeds in confidence while bombs are exploding. In the midst of war, race conflicts, greed and selfishness, we see little to make us hope. Help us this day to glimpse the far horizons of better days. Keep us from fainting and inspire us in Christ to march forward. Thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Make us conscious that to dwell in Thee is the assurance of sunlit days and victorious years ahead. Amen.

LOWER BUCKS LEAGUE TO HAVE TWO SECTIONS

Buckingham, Southampton and Langhorne Will Make Up One Group

TO AWARD TROPHIES

Bristol, Fallsington, Bensalem, Morrisville Will Be in One Section

The Lower Bucks County Scholastic Basketball League will be divided into two sections, according to the plans as set forth at a meeting of the representatives of the schools held Monday night in the Bristol High School with President John Hoffman, of Morrisville, presiding.

The upper section will be composed of Buckingham, Southampton and Langhorne while Bristol, Fallsington, Bensalem and Morrisville will make up the lower section of the circuit.

The leagues will have both varsity and junior varsity competition with trophies being awarded to the winners and runner-ups of both sections.

The representatives also decided to endeavor to enlist all schools in the forthcoming baseball season and President Hoffman suggested that the various coaches get in touch with all nearby schools to form a ten-team league, divided into two sections.

The school representatives were: Buckingham, Richard Dickinson; Bristol, William Bartholomew and Walter Rosser; Bensalem, John Bixler; Langhorne, George Zarr; Southampton, Claude Lodge; Fallsington, Michael DeRisi.

In the absence of the regular secretary, Charles Utz, Bristol, Walter Rosser presided in his capacity.

U. S. 3rd Army Intensifies Its Drive Into Saar

The Germans yielded ground in the entire region, falling back toward the adjacent German frontier as the American 35th division at one point made a dash of seven miles, moving to within three miles northeast of Sarreguemines.

Troops of the Fifth Infantry Division advanced three and one half miles on a nine-mile front, virtually clearing the forest of Der Karlsbrunn, eight miles west of Saarbrücken.

The situation in the north along the Roer River front remained substantially unchanged.

Troops of the American First Army southeast of Aachen knocked out a gain of more than 1,000 yards to take the town of Bergstein, less than 1,000 yards from the Roer. German resistance still remained very stiff around Vossenack and the Hurtgen Forest.

The Yank Ninth Army broke up a possible German counter-attack around Lucherberg before the enemy could get his forces under way while the American Seventh Army cleared the Germans from Selestat between Strashourg and Colmar after three days of heavy fighting.

Penna. Servicemen Spur War Efforts

women were part of a mighty military machine grinding along the bitterly-contested roads leading to Berlin and Tokyo.

From the lowliest GI to Gen. George C. Marshall, of Uniontown, the Army Chief-of-Staff, Pennsylvania's fighting men were training, planning or battling their way toward the day when victorious Allied armies will swing down Berlin's Unter Der Linden or parade the Ginza in Tokyo.

Gov. Edward Martin, a retired major-general and veteran of five wars, revealed more than 7500 Pennsylvania soldiers have died in battle during World War II.

The State's 28th Division, formerly composed of National Guardsmen, is a veteran of some of the most bitter fighting in the war. Sons of the men who won fame at Condebric, Fismes and the Argonne Forest in 1918, have added a new chapter to the Division's history in France and Germany.

Known as the "Iron Division," the 28th was dubbed the "Blood Patch Division" by Nazis because of the red keystone flash coupled with its tenacity in battle.

Veterans of the Normandy beachhead, the 28th paraded through Paris shortly after the city's liberation and at last reports were battling through the Hurtgen Forest in Germany.

Pennsylvanians have won their share of decorations for bravery including 10 Congressional Medals of Honor. The first native of the Keystone State to be honored for gallantry, above and beyond the call of duty, was Chief Boatwains Mate Edwin J. Hill, of Philadelphia, who died in the wreckage-littered waters of Pearl Harbor.

Many Pennsylvanians have been included in the high command of the Allied armies including Gen. Henry H. Arnold, of Gladwynne, U. S. Army Air Forces commander and head of the Superfortress 20th Bomber Command, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, of Wilkes-Barre, chief of U. S. Naval Forces in European waters, and Marshall.

While Selective Service has been concerned primarily with inductions, efforts now were directed toward rehabilitation of returning veterans, a spokesman reported.

On November 1, more than 1,655,400 men between the ages of 18 and 37 were listed on Selective Service rolls, he disclosed.

The initial registration was held October 16, 1940, and about one month later the first draftees left their homes to begin military life which has taken them to North Africa, Sicily, Italy, England, France, Belgium, Germany, Australia, India, China, Burma, and countless islands in the Pacific.

Memorial Fund Will Benefit From Match

For weeks the club has been working on the dog show for the benefit of the war memorial fund. Although the amount cleared at the dog show will, of course, not be a fabulous amount, it will mark the actual start of the funds received for this project.

The show will get under way at 1:30 with the children's classes, open to children under 16, after which the veterans and brace classes will then follow immediately.

The classes will be as follows: Puppies up to 6 months; puppies, 6 to 12 months; novice for dogs with no first ribbons; and open. All classes divided by sex.

Specials: Veteran class, open to dogs and bitches over 5 years; brace class, open to any two dogs of the same breed, either sex; parade of champions, with each champion introduced over a loud speaker and presented with an appropriate ribbon.

Extra: Best puppy in match, with each judge picking the best puppy in the breeds and in the groups, the final six puppies to compete for the best puppy in match.

A trophy will be presented to the winner of each group, best in match and best of opposite sex. Rosettes will be presented to the four placings in each group, and the "Oliver Price Memorial Challenge Cup" will be up for competition. Judges will include George Butz, dog editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer, who will judge best in match, best puppy, best veteran and best brace; Thelma Royer, Hartsville, cocker spaniels; Harold B. Watson, Treves, all other sporting and group; Ernest Gruel, Lincoln Park, Pa., all hounds and group; J. E. Henry, Ivyland, all working and group; Ella Leonards Ott, New Britain, all terriers and group; Evelyn Jackson, Oaklyn, N. J., all toys and group; Stephen Averill, Westwood, N. J., all non-sporting and group; Ella Leonards Ott, New Britain, children's handling classes.

No charge will be made for children's handling, but dogs must be entered in classes.

Ray Stengel, captain-elect of U. of P. football team of 1945, who was the recipient of the Maxwell Award, showed five reels of pictures in which were portrayed the games with Dartmouth and Michigan.

Louis Ianucci was presented with $5 in war stamps and Leo Johnson was given a pen by Mr. Bowen.

A vote of appreciation was given Mr. Bowen for his courtesy of the evening.

It was a very enjoyable evening, and Mr. Bowen presided in a very gracious manner. The national anthem was sung as an opening feature, and grace was offered by the host.

Bowen has always been a staunch rooter for the team and a strong advocate of a better athletic field.

Bristol Man Told by Court To Pay Wife $25 Weekly

not count the number of times that her husband hit her.

Mrs. Paone now lives with her mother at 1842 Farragut avenue, Bristol. The defendant lives with his parents in Bristol. His father was a former interpreter in the Bucks county court at a time when Judge Boyer was District Attorney. Paone was represented at the desecration hearing by William Conca, Bristol attorney, while Mrs. Paone was represented by Attorney J. Leslie Kileoyne, of Bristol.

Paone testified that his wife left their Bristol home last June and went to Brooklyn where she stayed for nine weeks. Mrs. Paone said that she went to Brooklyn "for a rest," and that while she was away her daughter, Doreen, was taken ill and is now in a hospital in Philadelphia with a serious disease.

Paone testified that this is the fourth time that his wife left him. He denied that he ever struck his wife, after their children were born, but admitted that he did strike her before that, during arguments. Paone also denied that he ever went out with other women.

Mrs. Paone told Judge Boyer that she would not be willing to go back with her husband because he had said, just recently, that if she did come back that his knuckles would be worn bare from hitting her. Paone denied making any such statement.

"Why did you go to Brooklyn for a rest," Paone's attorney asked Mrs. Paone. "You could have found consolation right at the home of your mother, could you not, at a time like that?" the attorney asked.

"I didn't want to bother mother with our private troubles," Mrs. Paone replied.

In making the order, Judge Boyer said that he hoped Mrs. Paone would think this case over seriously and decide to go back with her husband. He described them both as "hot-headed," and pointed out to them the results of homes that are broken up like this one; homes that usually furnish all the cases for juvenile court where children are separated from their parents.

The non-support case of Commonwealth against John Bannett, of Bristol, was continued until December 18th, pending further investigation by Probation Officer Horace E. Gwinner.

Car inspectors are the civilian top-sergeants who bring time-worn cars up to par. The average car now is over eight years old. War-time wear—plus age—means that you must be more alert than ever to keep your car rolling. Car inspection will help you to do this.

YOUR CAR MUST BE INSPECTED BY JANUARY 31, 1945. There will be no extension of this period. Get in early and have the job done. Waiting until the last days of this period may mean that you will be unable to drive your car because you lack the official inspection sticker.

TRANSPORTATION MUST NOT FAIL. It will not fail if you cooperate by getting your car inspected—and inspected early. Pennsylvania is counting on you.

CAR INSPECTION TODAY IS AN ECONOMIC REQUIREMENT AS WELL AS A WISE SAFETY PRECAUTION. STICK BY YOUR STICKER.
